

Want something new, unique, dramatically DIFFERENT in Orchid Hybrids? Then you should be among the first to invest in some of these Dendrobium seedlings in transplanted flasks -- most of the crosses never having been offered anywhere (including Hawaii) before! (See Page U.)

SPECIAL FOUR-STAR ATTRACTION

Don't let the price scare you. Footnote tells how to get one flask as a BONUS!

#535-D - D. TOKAI, VAR. GREEN GOLD X D. ROBUSTUM - Yellows, bronzes and browns are always in demand. So I predict every Orchid enthusiast will want some seedlings of this cross. Tokai, Green Gold, fits its name, producing long, graceful sprays of green-yellow flowers; darker green veins deep in throat. D. Robustum, with the intriguing color combination of chocolate brown and rich, butter yellow, should help the cross produce all shades of yellow, bronze and brown.

250cc flask of this Four-Star Attraction (Limit, 1 flask per customer).....$50.00

DENDROBIUM FLASK GROUP NUMBER 1

#526-D - D. TOKAI, GREEN GOLD X D. INTHURNII - D. Inthurnii produces sprays of White flowers; veined purple lips; individual blooms wider than Tokai. Expect green-yellows with purple lips; some with shades of peach, for crossing yellows with white-colored-lip often produces peach colored hybrids.

#530-D - D. HAWAII (D. Tokai, Green Gold X D. Phalaenopsis, Dixon) - While D. Hawaii is a primary hybrid that has been made and re-made, this is the first time - to my knowledge - that its parents have been the GREEN GOLD Tokai and darkest of all DIXON variety of D. Phalaenopsis. I expect a superior variety of D. Hawaii, colors varying from yellow to brilliant red-purple.

#538-D - D. CAPRA X D. TOKAI, GREEN GOLD - D. Capra resembles the better known D. Undulatum, as its sprays of yellow and brown flowers are of the "undulating" wavy and curled form. More yellows and bronzes are expected, but differing in form from those in cross #526-D.

#553-D - D. HAWAII NUI VAR. PINK PRINCESS X D. CAPRA - "Pink Princess" had sprays of large, well-formed solidly pink flowers. Crossed with the wavy-petalled brown and yellow Capra, it should produce many intriguing forms and colors, including bronze suffused pink and rich red-brown.

#531-D - D. LOIS ANDERSON (D. Hawaii Nui var. Dark Beauty X D. Phalaenopsis, Dixon) - Ever since 1947, when Mr. Kirsch registered D. Lois Anderson, it has received raves about its grand, round form and heavy texture. With these unusually fine, dark parents, it should keep the wonderful form and also be exceedingly dark and brilliant in color.

#552-D - D. PHALAENOPSIS, DIXON X D. ROBUSTUM - Expect this crossing of dark red-purple with the yellow and brown Robustum to produce many flowers even darker than Dixon; should be some brilliant reds; a few yellows and bronzes.

Group #2 prices:

Single flask....$20.00 Any two in group....$35.00. Any three in group....$45.00

DENDROBIUM FLASK GROUP NUMBER 3

#544-D - D. PHALAENOPSIS, DIXON (5th Generation) X SELF - Each generation of the largest and darkest Dixon strain of D. Phalaenopsis, selected and selfed, has produced even finer, darker and more brilliant flowers. So we did it again. The bloom chosen was 3 3/4 inches across; crisp, heavy texture; perfect round form; unusually dark, vivid red-purple.

#558-D - D. PHALAENOPSIS, DIXON X D. IMPERATRIX - Imperatrix came from the Solomon Islands. The exceedingly long, graceful sprays have pale, shell-like apple blossom pink blooms. At first glance they remind me of a formation of pink birds in flight. Purple veins in lips. The Dixon strain of D. Phalaenopsis should increase the size and darken the color of the "birds".

#551-D - D. PHALAENOPSIS, DIXON X D. KEHAULANA AYAU VAR. BURGUNDY QUEEN - The original D. Kehaulana Ayau was made with the white, holoeucum variety of D. Phalaenopsis crossed on D. Sander's Crimson. But this time Sander's Crimson was crossed with Dixon, producing rich, wine red flowers with round, heavy Dixon form. Crossed back on Dixon again, they should be even darker.

4544-D - D. PHALANXOPOLIS, DIXON (See Generalized) X 2511 - Each generation of the labeled and labeled Dixon (D. Phalanxopolis) selected and labeled, then produced even later, darker and more brilliant flowers. So we did it again. The blooms chosen with 3 1/2 inches across; color, heavy texture; perfect round form; unusually dark, vivid coloring.

4545-D - D. PHALANXOPOLIS, DIXON X D. PHALANXOPOLIS, DIXON - The Solomon Islands, the exceedingly fine, brilliant flowers have pale, shell-like apple blossoms pink blossoms. At first glance they remind me of a combination of pink blossoms in light. Purple veins in light. The Dixon (D. Phalanxopolis) should increase the size and darken the color of the "blossoms".

4546-D - D. PHALANXOPOLIS, DIXON X D. PHALANXOPOLIS, DIXON - The original D. Phalanxopolis (D. Phalanxopolis) was the same as the original D. Phalanxopolis crossed with Dixon, producing light, white flowers with round, heavy Dixon form.
Crossed back on Dixon again, they should be even darker.
